

Critic's Choice

By Gerard Gilbert
 g.gilbert@independent.co.uk

sex abuse in British private schools. Three brave and articulate middle-aged men (including Tom, shown right as a youngster) recount their grooming at a prep school in the 1960s, and their accounts transcend the usual clichés while damning the complicity of the commercial education sector as a whole.

Champions League Live

7.30PM ITV1
 Arsenal, in need of points after their 1-1 draw in Kiev, host the Portuguese champions, FC Porto. AaB Aalborg vs Manchester United is on ITV4.

Losing It: Griff Rhys Jones on Anger

9PM BBC2
 Our man tries potential anger cures, including boxing and meditation.

Jamie's Ministry of Food

9PM CHANNEL 4
 The Yorkshire town of Rotherham has been singled out as in need of Jamie Oliver's latest campaign, an attempt to wean non-cooks off ready meals (or worse: one five-year-old here eats kebab and chips nightly). Rotherham happens to be the home of Oliver's school-dinners nemesis, Julie Critchlow, the so-called "burger mum" caught poking bags of chips through playground bars.

Dawn Porter: Free Lover

10PM CHANNEL 4
 Haven't we been here before? OK, so not with Dawn Porter (left), a sort of distaff Louis Theroux, but in other documentaries about "free love", a lifestyle choice that turns out to be more riven with jealousy, fear and loathing than its alternatives.

True Stories: Chosen

10PM MORE4
 Undoubted pick of the day is the documentary-maker Brian Woods's unflashily compelling look at child

